Preface

A collection of photographs was passed to G.M. Story by the Howley family at the time that the typescript of “Reminiscences” was sent for an evaluation. The photos were among those J.P. Howley saved from his views of scenes and activities during his summer explorations in Newfoundland.

The photos are presented here, keyed to the identifications which Howley wrote on the back of each view. As far as possible, the photographs have been traced to each scene in his narrative where Howley snapped the picture. That is, No. 4 also records the page in the online version of Reminiscences, [1161], where Howley describes the boom containing pine logs on the Exploits River. Pictures lacking page numbers cannot with certainty be traced in the narrative.

The photos are located in the English Language Research Centre, Memorial University, in the Howley Reminiscences file. We are grateful to Don Walsh, Digitization Specialist, for preparing the Howley photographs and creating this website.
