the life of a lentil image

1. metadata of user-tagged Instagram image is harvested via API
2. image is approved by moderator
3. image battles, collects "likes" (subjective metadata)
4. (loop) calculate popularity score
5. (loop) check for removal from Instagram
6. image file is harvested and stored in staging area
7. donor agreement is automatically submitted as a comment
8. barring author objection, image metadata and file are packaged for external system

How would you feel about your photos being added to an archival collection?
"I would be so excited. For me, I think it would be better than winning an iPad."
Okay so my Instagram of hunt library is going to be in their archival collection and shown at the actual library. #nobigdeal 😊 ncsulibraries Thanks for your picture! The NCSU Libraries is archiving most Instagram photographs tagged #HuntLibrary to help document the story of the James B. Hunt Jr. Library. This photo is one of those selected for addition to this archival collection. The archives document the history of NC State for future generations, and your image will become part of the story of our new library. You will retain full ownership of any and all copyrights, but we ask that you grant the University a nonexclusive right to authorize all uses of these materials for non-commercial research, scholarly, or educational purposes or to publicize the Libraries, compatible with a Creative Commons Attribution, Non-commercial license. Please contact the Libraries.

That's pretty legit! Appreciate the props #huntlibrary!

Forbes, re: Smithsonian and NARA

"So do people want to spend their free time adding to the historical record? Unequivocally yes, said both institutions in recent conversations with me."
